I recently got accepted into the prestigious dual degree program at my school, which meant a lot to me because it meant facing my fears and believing in myself that I had what it took to get in. After previously getting rejected for my high school's art conservatory I lost a lot of confidence in my art and my ability to create a well curated and impactful portfolio, but after two years of reflection, hard work, and perseverance, I got accepted into my dream program and will start with it this fall.
